Subject: Website for Regulatory Information

The customer is directed to either the Android or Apple store to download the application when the product is purchased. In order to operate the device, the application download and registration is required. The application provides installation steps, pairing and registration. The customer then places the sensor on the meter and water usage is now available on the phone. Operating instructions are provided from the application. Below is a screenshot of the sign-up page. The licensing link at the bottom brings up the second page which includes the FCC and ISED regulatory information for user.

Sincerely,

Alan Beverly
