

Operational Description

This product is the ear set of the wireless earphone. It is a transceiver and powered by battery. The voice signal of cellular phone is conducted transmitted into the base set via wire, and then being transmitted to the ear set by radio wave. The microphone installed in the ear set can receive the voice signal of the human being and then send this signal to the base set.