

All measurements were performed via radiated to obtain a field strength that was compared to a specification limit. Due to this additional antenna gain documents are not required.

All measurements were performed via radiated to obtain a field strength that was compared to a specification limit. Due to this, additional antenna gain documents are not required.

All measurements were performed via radiated to obtain a field strength that was compared to a specification limit. Due to this, additional antenna gain documents are not required.